Carolyn Mulford's Welcome to the 2017 Reunion

Coming into the room last night and seeing all those joyful, smiling faces, I thought what a lucky bunch we are. Lucky to be here at all 60 years after graduating, and lucky to be here with each other. Looking at you, I see the faces of 1957, teenagers who share memories of an important time, those self-absorbed years when we were figuring out who we were going to be.

Memories of those years have faded, though some events remain clearer than what happened a few weeks ago. I wondered what memories everyone shares. One must be the frantic Mardi Gras season where the classes competed to raise the most money and have their class candidates named king and queen. Everyone contributed, often with unique fundraising ideas. Another would be building homeroom homecoming floats, pretty and clever presentations far more entertaining than those I see in homecoming parades now. And then we had the campaign to pass the bond issue for a new high school.

Some of the sharpest memories for each for us surely involve our favorite activities—playing on a school or intramural team, rehearsing with the marching band, preparing to sing in the chorus or play in the orchestra at a Christmas program, taking the stage in a school play, serving on the student council, putting together the many pieces of the yearbook, taking part in the Roman Banquet in which the Spanish class served the conquering Latin students, traveling to Chicago with Masque and Gavel to see a big-time play and hear Tony Bennett at a real night club.

KHS offered us opportunities to explore many interests. For me, the big one was co-editing the school newspaper with Phyllis. We had a lot of fun and a lot of freedom. The experience confirmed and strengthened my desire to become a writer.

We were lucky in having excellent teachers. They went far beyond their job descriptions to counsel, coax, and coerce us to accomplish more than we thought we could. Perhaps their great example contributed to so many of the class becoming teachers.

We've been lucky to have Jeanne, Dorothy, and other classmates willing to organize five- and 10-year reunions for decades—and to coax and coerce classmates to come.

For me, one of the most heartening things about our reunions is this: Each reunion we seem to appreciate each other more. We had cliques and other things that set us apart in high school, but the divisions have vanished over the years. I haven't seen so many people smiling at each other since our last reunion.

Last night as I caught up with old friends, the writer in me thought what a treasure trove of human experience had gathered. I wanted to hear about each person's life. We're a living anthology of life stories, and the common thread of those stories is the experiences we shared as the Class of '57.

If you've taught, you've seen a class form a group personality. What was our group personality? I can give a partial answer: We welcomed challenges, and we worked together to meet them. Now, 60 years later, more than half of the survivors cared enough about each other to make the effort to come here.

We are a lucky bunch.

Gene Linder's Closing Remarks at the 2017 Reunion

I haven't lived in Kirksville for over half a century, but whenever I come back for the class reunion it is like coming home again. My wife, Carol, is a graduate of a high school in California and she prefers to come to our reunion, rather than hers.

We have been to her 50th Reunion and found it to be . . . so, so. The only interesting thing that happened there was her old boyfriend coming up to us and telling me that "I was the luckiest man in the world" for having married her.

We never went back. I told her later that no one at the Kirksville reunion would ever tell her that she was the 'luckiest woman in the world' because she had married me.

There is something special about our class, however, I don't know if it is due to the Midwest, or Missouri, or Kirksville upbringing, or it is just unique to our class. These folks are pleasant, warm, and welcoming, genuine and authentic in their behaviors.

I am sure you recognize this from your experiences this weekend as you renewed old acquaintances, perhaps made new friends, and brought each other up to date on what is happening in your lives. Well, this all didn't happen by accident. In addition to you all showing up, there was a 60th Anniversary Reunion Committee that did the good work to bring this all together.

I would like to express our appreciation for their good work and better results by calling them by name, having them stand until the list is complete and then give them a deserved round of applause:

Now there are three other things I want you to consider with me before we end the night. First, when you go to bed tonight (which won't be long for most of us), when your head hits the pillow, I would like you to spend a few minutes thinking about those classmates who are no longer with us. We had good times with those folks, and some pleasurable activities. I think you'll find that a rewarding and pleasant activity. GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN.

The second thing I'd like you to consider is that although we have a great turnout tonight, there are several classmates who are around but not here. I would like each of you to consider a classmate you could contact (however one communicates these days) and within the next week tell them what a great time you had at the reunion and encourage them to join us next time.

The third thing I would like you to consider, and this is meant personally for each of you, is this:

TIME IS SHORT! DO THINGS THAT BRING YOU JOY! Good night.

Some Final Thoughts from the Editor

Some statistics: There are pictures of 129 seniors in the 1957 Kirksville High School Regit, and there are 127 names in our graduation program. Prior to our fiftieth reunion, we scoured the world for people who had been members of our class in earlier years, and in the process, we ended up with a total of 145 individuals that we've tried to keep in touch with. We've not done too badly; we've lost track of only four classmates. Sixty six of our extended class have died, however, which leaves just 75 of us for whom we have an address. Of those, 56 have email addresses.

And some musings: Something magical happened to our class on the way to 1957. It might have happened to us in any other decade, or in any other town. But the fact is that it was the Fifties, and it was Kirksville. What happened was, we started to really like each other, as perhaps no other class has ever liked each other. We may have been the luckiest people in the world to get all thrown together when we did.

We worked hard as a team, but no harder than we played. We cried with each other as sincerely as we celebrated, and my, how sincerely we celebrated! We were a close-knit group, made up of several even closer-knit groups, but close never meant closed — we always seemed able to make room for one more. We could be intense when we were competing with each other, but there was really no contest when we were all competing with someone else, which was often.

We invented sex. At least I think we did. Our parents didn't know anything about it, but our kids sure did, so it must have started with us. On the other hand, we left it to the next generation to invent drugs. Did I mention how lucky we were?

So here we are, 65 years later. And still we drive, fly, call, write, and text to stay in contact. Because we still damn well like each other.

Maybe it wasn't magic. Maybe it wasn't luck. It may not even have had anything to do with the Fifties or with Kirksville. I'd like to think it was just us. — Ted
